| | Research: International Dupuytren Data Bank (IDDB). |
| | The lack of a disease biomarker and the lack of documentation of the natural history |
| | of Dupuytren disease are barriers to progress toward a Dupuytren cure. The IDDB is a |
| | unique research project designed to create these critical resources in a rapid, cost- efficient way. The IDDB has two components: survey and biomarker research. |
| | The survey component is a secure, HIPAA-compliant online form to gather demographic, |
| | general medical, and Dupuytren-specific patient-reported data as well as individual |
| | trends over time. The survey has averaged 100 new enrollees monthly since |
| | it went live in Nov 2015. Survey hosting and database administration are |

| Description |

| The biomarker research program was developed with input from the Dupuytren Research Group Research Committee, which includes Dupuytren Research thought leaders from five countries. Blood Dupuytren biology is complex, and the DRG approach to biomarker identification has evolved from simple gene testing to analyzing multiple biomarkers to a systems biology approach using computational biology. Tests for some candidate biomarkers are costly and present difficult logistics. We continue to engage a growing group of international scientists to provide guidance for optimum Dupuytren biomarker study. Our pilot Dupuytren Blood Biomarker Discovery research study began in 2020 and completed blood sample collection in 2021. Data Analysis is underway, and we expect to publish the results in stages beginning in 2023. |
| This program is in its first pilot study stage. The second phase of research has a projected 5-year budget of $7,000,000. |
| The value of this program will be to establish a laboratory test to provide individualized treatment guidelines, outcome prediction, and, most important, a platform to develop and test new preventive medical treatments for Dupuytren disease. |
| Research, Topography: The Dupuytren Topography research study is a retrospective chart review of over 2300 previously untreated Dupuytren patients treated by Dr. Eaton. Data includes medical history, Dupuytren-related history, detailed examination findings, and measurements before and-after treatment. This is a unique data set, unlikely to be repeated in size or complexity. The goal of this project is to find correlations between medical risk factors, topographic patterns of Dupuytren disease in the palm, and treatment outcome. This project is labor intensive, using custom data entry forms developed to convert handwritten paper patient record and diagram scans manually into machine-readable data. Data entry is complete, and preliminary analysis is underway. |
| The value of this program is to better understand the natural history and subcategories of Dupuytren disease to improve clinical decision-making and personalized treatment recommendations. |
| Research: Literature archives. Publications on Dupuytren disease exist in hundreds of different journals and textbooks, many which are out of print and many of which are not available in all medical libraries. The Dupuytren Research Group literature archive is the largest searchable full-text archive of Dupuytren-related academic publications. This includes over 9,000 unique publications dating back 200 years. Most of these resources are not available online. Many represent out-of-print resources scanned and converted to a machine-readable text by the Dupuytren Research Group . These archives are regularly updated and available to interested Dupuytren researchers. |
| The value of this program is a unique Dupuytren knowledge resource created by the DRG and made available at no cost to Dupuytren researchers worldwide. |

Description

Education: Website content/videos. DRG produces and freely distributes various Dupuytren educational resources through its website Dupuytrens.org. These include Frequently Asked Questions, blog discussions, image galleries and videos. Dupuytren.tv, the DRG YouTube channel, provides over 100 educational videos for both lay and professional viewers. Dupuytren.tv also hosts an archive of video presentations from the international conferences described in section 4a.

The value of this program is to increase physician and public awareness of the burden of Dupuytren disease and increase enrollment in the IDDB research program.

Education: Brochure creation and distribution. DRG produces and distributes patient education brochures on request to physicians, therapists, and patient advocates without charge. An average of 2000 awareness brochures are distributed annually.
